MPs launch probe over Huw scandal

THE Culture, Media and Sport Committee has written to The Sun and BBC over their "widespread coverage" of allegations made against presenter Huw Edwards.

Earlier this month, The Sun was the first to report claims that BBC broadcaster Edwards paid a young person for sexually explicit photos.

A letter to Sun editor Victoria Newton asks her to explain what was done to verify the story.

The letter also asks Newton to set out what investigations are taking place into allegations made about former Sun journalist Dan Wootton, who has been accused of offering colleagues money for sexual material.

The committee has also written to BBC chairwoman Dame Elan Closs Stephens to request further details about the reviews into wider BBC processes.

2,000 jobs go at Virgin 02

MOBILE operator Virgin Media 02 is to slash up to 2,000 UK jobs, or 12% of its total workforce, by the end of this year.

The figure includes 800 role reductions that were already announced.

A spokesperson acknowledged that any period of change "can be difficult".

It comes after its rivals BT and Vodafone said in May that they were also cutting jobs.

A Virgin Media 02 spokesperson said: "We are consulting on proposals to simplify our operating model to better deliver for customers."

BRITAIN IS GETTING SICKER

Fatties blamed as figures show NHS will collapse

THE number of people living with major illnesses in England will rise nine times faster than the healthy working age population able to pay for them through taxes, projections show.

By 2040 nearly one in five will have health conditions, up from one in six in 2019.

The Health Foundation, which did the analysis, said the population shift would have a major impact on the NHS.

The projections suggest there will be 9.1 million people with a major health condition by 2040, a 37% rise in the latest data from 2019.

By comparison, the number of healthy working-age people will increase by just 4%.

Most of the increase is being driven by the ageing population, but there will be growing numbers of young people living in ill health too, the report said.

Obesity is one of the major factors that will drive rises in illnesses. This will offset the gains made by fewer people smoking, and lower cholesterol.

There will also be particularly big increases in people living with anxiety and depression, chronic pain and diabetes.

Lead researcher Anita Charlesworth said: "Over the next two decades, the growth in major illness will place additional demand on all parts of the NHS."

Dr Layla McCay, of the NHS Confederation, which represents health managers, said the projections were "worrying" given the increased pressure and demand on the NHS which the changes would lead to.

2030 ban on petrol cars WILL happen

THE 2030 ban on new petrol and diesel car sales is an immovable deadline, Cabinet minister Michael Gove has insisted after Rishi Sunak cast doubt on the policy.

The Housing Secretary warned costly plans to tackle the climate crisis could create a "backlash" as ministers come under pressure from the Tory right to relax pledges.

The Prime Minister was considering watering down some net-zero policies to take a "proportionate and pragmatic" approach to the environment.

Mr Sunak declined in an interview to recommit to the ban on the sale of new fossil fuel cars by the end of the decade as he warned against heaping extra costs on to families.

But Mr Gove offered cast iron guarantees that the 2030 deadline would not be put back.

Asked if it was "immoveable", he replied: "Yes."

Downing Street had insisted Mr Sunak stood by the policy despite his avoidance of the subject in an interview on Monday.

Mercy flights bring back Greece wildfire Brits

THOUSANDS of Britons have been rescued from fire-ravaged parts of Rhodes, with more facing their summer holidays being cancelled.

Repatriation flights continue, as holidaymakers spoke of their "traumatic" experiences, being evacuated from hotels and sleeping in schools, airports and sports centres on the Greek island.

As many as 10,000 Britons are estimated to be on the island, with 30,000 due to head there in the next few weeks.

Holiday operators continue to cancel flights and holidays,

By COLIN HURST
news@sundaysport.co.uk

meanwhile thousands could be at risk of having their getaway plans scuppered.

An easyJet pilot warned 37 passengers on a 180-capacity plane heading to Rhodes from Gatwick that it was a "bad idea" to travel to the island.

However, Michael Gove said he plans to holiday on the Greek island of Evia, insisting the region is safe.

The Housing Secretary said: "I'm due to go on holiday, God willing, to Greece in just over a week's time - not to Rhodes but to another island - and I'm looking forward to going."

Greece is a wonderful country, a wonderful place to holiday, and we do need to support the Greek government in dealing with the situation in Rhodes.

"My heart goes out to those who are affected but the advice is clear - if you follow Foreign Office advice it is safe."

Traumatic

A newlywed couple spending their honeymoon on Rhodes said they were taken out of their hotel amid "intense" smoke and the sound of a child screaming "I don't want to die".

Claire and Paul Jones, both 36, from Leicestershire, were moved on Saturday by coach from the Village Rhodes Beach Resort near Lardos.

Mrs Jones told reporters: "It was really quite traumatic driving to where we went because you could see everyone fleeing their hotels, and people were walking along the beaches, walking along the roads, and they had babies and small children."

Mark Payton, from Bristol, criticised tour operator Tui and said his family had managed to get back to the UK only after taking a ferry from Rhodes to Kos and then finding a flight to their home city.

He added: "It is just devastation over there. You plan for these holidays, and it just feels like a real rubbish long weekend away."

Migrants die in heatwave

PEOPLE smugglers have been taking advantage of record heat to sneak migrants into the US, believing it's too hot for border officers to patrol.

A record number of dead migrants have been recovered at the border as temperatures soared above 100 degrees for 36 consecutive days, the US Border Patrol said.

"We are currently recording a significant number of migrant deaths in New Mexico due to the desert and extreme heat," the agency said.

In the summer, smugglers normally avoid the hottest hours.

"We are seeing a lot of people crossing during the hottest part of the day, which is something we normally had not seen before," Border Patrol Agent Andy Buckert said.

WE'RE ALL GONNA FRY!

EXPERTS say extreme heat and temperatures of more than 40C are becoming increasingly likely in the UK due to climate change as the Met Office prepares to publish its annual report.

The warning comes as Britain is lashed with rain and holidaymakers on "staycations" shiver in chilly temperatures.

Climate experts have warned that the 40C heat seen last year would not be possible without climate change and Britain is underprepared for increasingly likely extreme weather events.

Oli Claydon, from the Met Office, said the 40C milestone is still viewed as an "extreme weather event" but it is going to be increasingly more likely in the UK as the years go on.

"It is evident that the climate is possible to reach 40C in the UK now, as we saw in a number of stations in July last year," he said.

"The likelihood of exceeding it in the UK in a given year is now increasing due to human-induced climate change," Mr Claydon added.

"We're already experiencing the impacts of climate change now, so there's already a need to adapt to the types of weather extremes that we can see in the UK."

BARBIE MARGOT TICKLED BY TOOTSIES FETISH FANS

ARCH:
Margot's

BARBIE star Margot Robbie has revealed she is flattered at being a pin-up for FOOT fetishists.

The star explained that it all dates back to when she first googled herself...with a little help from the search engine's autocomplete predictions.

"The very first time I googled myself, I wrote in 'Margot Robbie' and before I finished writing 'Robbie', 'Margot Robbie feet' came up," the actress revealed.

She decided to explore further and clicked on the result, only to find not just several "zoomed in" pictures of her feet, but also a "video compilation of footage" of specific scenes.

The I, Tonya star wasn't weirded out, admitting she felt "flattered" that her body parts had their very own fan club.

"Since then, I've been lucky to be in some iconic films," she confirmed.

"There's been some shots of my feet which I think have only encouraged this notion.

She then added: "I'm really flattered that people are excited about my feet. I think that's lovely. I don't feel weird about it."

The focus on Robbie's feet isn't new. Well before she stepped into the high-heeled shoes of the famous Mattel doll, she pushed Leonardo DiCaprio away with her foot in The Wolf of Wall Street.

The trend continued with her feet resting on a cinema chair in Tarantino's Once Upon A Time...in Hollywood and Harley Quinn's barefoot escape scene in The Suicide Squad.

In June, the star broke down the already-iconic feet scene in which her Barbie walks along in her heels and steps out of them, with her feet maintaining the same exact arching of the plastic doll.

"They are my feet," Margot said, adding it took "about eight takes" to get it right.

"We had little bits of double-sided tape on the floor, for the shoes so they wouldn't come off – so I could get my feet out of them."

Woke Beeb puts lesbians in danger

THE BBC's lunatic obsession with 'diversity' put lesbians in DANGER, it was claimed last night.

A woke BBC reporter from the BBC World Service, asked Moroccan national team captain Ghizlane Chebbak (above) at the Women's World Cup: "We know that gay marriage is illegal in Morocco."

"Are there any gay players in the team? And what is it like for them?"

A FIFA officer had to shut down the question, assessing that Moroccan players could be 'endangered' by asking whether or not any were gay.

"Sorry, this is a very political question, so we'll just stick to questions relating to football," they said.

A spokesperson for the BBC said: "We recognise the question was inappropriate. We had no intention to cause any harm or distress."

KIM Kardashian has BILLIONS tucked away in her panties!

The curvy reality TV star-turned-business mogul's shape-wear brand Skims raked in $270 million (£210m) in its most recent funding round to lift the company's valuation to FOUR BILLION dollars.

Kardashian is Skims' largest individual shareholder, with a 35% stake in the company, according to Forbes.

That means the 42-year-old mother-of-four is in for a half-billion-dollar windfall — bringing her net worth to $1.7 billion (£1.3bn).

Public

Skims' new valuation makes the company she co-founded with business partner Emma Grede in 2019 twice as valuable as legacy retailer Victoria's Secret, which saw sales drop 6% last year.

Grede, who also serves as Skims CEO, holds an 8% stake in the company.

The pair may now be poised to take the privately-held company public.

"It has grown quickly and we're so proud of that," Kardashian said. "We've had a good flow of product launches."

The company is on track to post its highest earnings year in the firm's short history, expecting to amass $750 million (£584m) in sales by the end of this year.

Hottie Cara happy she beat booze

CARA Delevingne has described herself as "stable and calmer" since embracing sobriety, but says it's been tough.

The model and actress first spoke about her decision to go sober earlier this year, following a series of pictures taken of her at Van Nuys Airport in Los Angeles last year.

The 30-year-old says she felt a weight was lifted after speaking about her struggles.

She said: "For a long time, I felt like I was hiding a lot from people who looked up to me. I feel as though I can be free and myself, fully."

On sobriety, she added: "It hasn't been easy, but there have never been moments when I'm like, 'This isn't worth it'."

"It's been worth every second. I don't know what it would take for me to give it up. I am stable."

"Before, I didn't trust myself. I second-guessed myself constantly. There was a lot of anxiety involved. Now I just feel free of that."

Radiographers latest to walk out in pay row

RADIOGRAPHERS are "overworked and undervalued", union bosses have said as radiographers launched a 48-hour strike at 37 NHS trusts in England.

Members of the Society of Radiographers (SoR) voted to reject the Government's 5% pay award and called for talks to reopen.

The union said worrying numbers of staff are leaving the profession.

It acknowledged that the strike would cause "massive disruption" but radiographers were taking to picket lines due to "massive workforce issues" facing the sector.

Leandre Archer, head of industrial relations at the SoR, said: "Nobody wants to be on the picket lines. But they're overworked and undervalued and they're making a stand because they need better pay and conditions."

She was formerly a special adviser to the Secretaries of State in the Department of Culture, Media and Sport and the Department of Health under the coalition government, and later became press secretary to George Osborne after the 2015 general election.

She also worked as a Tory Party spin doctor.

Since she left the government, Beeby has worked as a PR company director and spent time as head of external comms at HS2.

She said: "I'm delighted to be starting as chief communications officer at OnlyFans."

"Its commitment to building a safe platform for creators from all genres to connect with their fans and monetise their content is an exciting project to be a part of."

Impressive

OnlyFans has become a phenomenon since its launch seven years ago, in 2016 and features eye-popping content from models including Georgie Darby and Hannah Elizabeth. After an already impressive start, garnering some 7.5 million regular users, traffic to the site rocketed during the pandemic.

It now attracts 200,000 new visitors each day.

Celebrity OnlyFans stars include ex-Atomic Kitten star Kerry Katona and former Hollyoaks actress Sarah Jane Dunn in their knickers.

A Westminster source said: "OnlyFans will be a doddle for Sue. She's used to dealing with huge tits and arses because Whitehall is packed full of them!"

BRITS 'TOO SHAGGED-OUT FOR SEX'

WEARY Brits are too shagged out by modern life for sex, a survey has shown

Up to 45% of people admitted they don't have sex with their partner as they're too tired, and a further 29% claimed they are too stressed.

Sexual wellness brand Lovehoney carried out a survey of around 2,000 UK adults to uncover the real reasons why people aren't indulging in a little hanky panky.

Just under half (45%) of people surveyed said that feeling too tired stops them from having sex, making this by far the most common reason.

Those living in Cardiff struggle with this the most, with nearly three in five (58%) giving this reason, while people in Newcastle struggle with tiredness the least (38%).

The next most common reason is stress, with 29% of people surveyed admitting they struggle to have sex because life is just too stressful, followed by libido changes (28%) and differing sex drives (20%). Another recent survey by the National Sleep Foundation found that nearly 25% of cohabiting respondents report often being too tired to have sex with their partner.

And it's not just young women with kids affected – a study found that a lack of sleep can reduce male sexual desire, while research has found that sleep disturbance in menopausal women impacts their sex drive.

Experts recommended an early night and fingering to solve the problem.

BBC links gardens to 'colonialism' NOW PLANTS ARE RACIST

London's www.kew.org is famous for housing the largest botanical collection in the world.

But it's now examining a darker history – the collection of plants from colonised nations for political and commercial gain

SEEDS OF DOUBT: Beeb reports on Kew's Empire claims

Seig Heil!

ENJOYING your garden this summer? Then you're almost certainly a RACIST.

That's one conclusion seemingly reached by plant boffins at the world famous Royal Botanical Gardens in Kew.

Since the death of George Floyd, killed during a police arrest in the USA in 2020, Kew's green-fingered experts have been raising questions about the "colonial" sources of their massive seed collection.

Many of the 8 million samples were collected during the height of the British Empire in the 1800s – when Britain pretty much ruled the world.

The Documentary Podcast, from the BBC's World Service, explains how traders took over vast swathes of land in Brazil to produce rubber for use back here in Blighty.

Other countries like Malaysia and Sri Lanka also lost land due to land-grabbing for plantations.

Rainforests in Colombia were razed to the ground just so plant hunters could harvest rare orchids that grew on top of the tallest trees.

Along with the orchids, palms were also mass produced on otherwise good farming land to satisfy the demands of British gardeners as well as for tea, coffee and sugar.

Local communities stopped growing indigenous plants to instead satisfy their new colonial masters, whose future generations would eventually become English country gardeners.

Sending the seeds back to their roots is "a core part of healing ourselves of historical trauma," the podcast says.

Kew is now part of a "seed repatriation" project – returning some of its rarer samples to their indigenous peoples and lands, where mostly women do the harvesting.

Drugs hidden in cheeses

NEARLY 18 pounds of cocaine was discovered by customs officers – hidden inside four large wheels of cheddar cheese.

An X-ray scan of the cheese from a truck showed "anomalies" and when cut open the wheels revealed 17.8 pounds of cocaine hidden inside.

"Smugglers will sometimes try to conceal contraband in items that appear innocent to deflect suspicion," said border post Director Daniel Mercado.

Officials at the Presidio Port of Entry in Texas seized both the narcotics and the pick-up truck used to transport the drugs from Mexico.

The truck's driver, a 22-year-old US citizen, was turned over to Homeland Security to face charges for the failed smuggling attempt.

Blanke (above) was subsequently taken into custody for criminal trespass. He was sent to the Adams County Jail.

In April Blanke was arrested after deputies on patrol saw the man having "sexual contact with a horse."

A MAN who walked through a village called DICKLEBURGH with his penis out was feeling lonely, a court heard.

He appeared before Norwich Magistrates Court to be sentenced having pleaded guilty to a charge of outraging public decency by behaving in an indecent manner.

He also admitted sending a text message that included a picture of his penis to a woman in the village.

The court was told Hall, of Brandreth Close in Dickleburgh, also remains under investigation for similar alleged offences of sending indecent images, malicious communications, making unwanted calls and public nudity.

SHE'S KEEPING THEIR ENDS UP!

IS THAT A MISSILE IN YOUR POCKET: Fan-Pei

By ABBEY HAY
new@sundaysport.co.uk

An Instagram influencer who shipped out to help Ukraine amid the war with Russia has found her niche – aiding soldiers and volunteers as an “emotional support STRIPPER.”

And she's letting Kyiv's brave fighters suck her busters to help them keep their ends up!

Fan-Pei Koug, from Houston, Texas, created an OnlyFans account that is free for Ukrainian soldiers and volunteers, where she describes herself as “a globe-trotting girlfriend, now volunteering in Kharkiv.”

Striptease

The 33-year-old, who includes videos of stripteases as air raid sirens blare and shirtless photos with rocket launchers, does everything from “free emotional breastfeeding to soldiers and volunteers” to distributing cash donations to Ukrainians, according to her OnlyFans profile, which says proceeds go toward her humanitarian efforts.

“I’m the sexy girl in Ukraine who wants to volunteer, and will probably put out,” she said.

The 2015 Miss Taiwanese American Pageant competitor first headed to Ukraine in November 2022 to volunteer and assist refugees, working at women's shelters and orphanages in Lviv, a city in the western part of the country, far from the front lines.

Koug then moved to the volatile eastern Donbas region, bringing water to those still living in bombed-out towns and offering emotional support while she learns Ukrainian.

“It’s a little soft core diplomacy I’m bringing,” Koug said. “Everyone’s sending their strongest and finest, I wandered in and was like, ‘Hey whats up, wanna talk? I’ll give you a massage.’”

Fake priest heard workers’ ‘sins’

OWNERS of a restaurant are paying almost £110,000 in back wages and damages to 35 employees after using a fake priest to make them confess “workplace sins.”

The bogus priest urged employees to “get the sins out” by interrogating them about stealing from work, being late or doing anything else to harm their bosses.

The Department of Labor report into the Sacramento restaurant added: “This employer’s despicable attempts to retaliate against employees were intended to silence workers, obstruct an investigation and prevent the recovery of unpaid wages.”

The compensation was ordered by a judge.

ULRIKA SON’S NUDE PIC TEASE

ULRIKA Jonsson says her son was teased in school after she posted a picture of her naked body on social media.

Mum-of-four Ulrika, 55, recalled the reaction when she posted a nude picture on Instagram.

“The other day, my youngest male – a hormonal 15-year-old boy – confided in me that he’d been teased by some older boys at school about the fact that I ‘post nudes’ on social media.”

The photo shows Ulrika outdoors while her naked body is in profile as she covers her “most important bits with a strategically placed wheelbarrow”.

Jonsson then noted that while some applauded her for her courage, she “was also trolled” for the daring picture.

“This is par for the course when women show off any parts of their bodies or pose ‘sexily’. We expose ourselves physically and we become targets for those who have opinions about our bodies.”

#MY SEX FANTASY

'I love nothing more than being a compliant sex slave...'

...WITH JASMINE ROUGE, 32C, FROM KENT

I'D absolutely love to turn my basement into a naughty sex dungeon.

I would go for the glam look – everywhere would be draped in luxurious deep red velvet... the walls, a huge circular bed and a gorgeous chaise longue.

There'd be a grand sex slave cage and hooks in the ceiling for suspended bondage.

And loads and loads of sex toys... think floggers, paddles and whips all nicely displayed on the walls.

I'd also have handcuffs, blindfolds, gags, gimp masks, a spreader bar (to spread the legs), vibrators, dildos, strap-ons, butt plugs... have I missed anything out?

I would have a naughty spanking bench and a huge sex swing... they look so much fun!

I'd play some kick ass tunes... something with a really heavy bassline. Any Rihanna songs would work – the kind of tunes lap dancers strut their stuff to.

I love being submissive. Giving up control is so freeing. I'd love a confident master to take charge, tie me to my spanking bench and show me who's boss.

I can switch things up and become the dominant one, too. I do enjoy that.

But ultimately, I'm a sub at heart and I love nothing more than being a really compliant sex slave.

'Boy' ape gives birth to baby!

ZOO bosses were left stunned when a gorilla gave birth – as they previously thought the giant monkey mum was a BOY.

Sully, who has lived at Columbus Zoo in Ohio since 2019, was believed to be a male up until zookeepers saw the ape holding her baby.

The eight-year-old gorilla fell pregnant back in the autumn, zookeepers believe, and the new mum is taking good care of her newborn girl.

"We're thrilled by the addition of another birth for this critically endangered species," the zoo said in a statement.

"As the 34th gorilla born here since 1956, she's an important part of our work to conserve these magnificent animals."

Employees are giving the pair "time to bond" before conducting a wellness exam.

Zookeepers do not know who the father is, but DNA tests will be run, the Columbus Zoo said.

Cock chop no bed of roses

A FLORIST was shocked upon discovering a package with a severed COCK outside their shop.

The mysterious box was found at the Rosas de Los Mochis flower shop in the centre of Los Mochis, Mexico.

Initially suspecting it was an explosive device, local police enlisted the bomb squad to investigate.

After conducting tests, authorities determined that the package was not an explosive. Instead, the parcel harboured an amputated penis.

The package – adorned with a funeral wreath – came with a sinister note inside that read: "The reflection of your actions. So you can educate yourself and get off my balls."

The National Guard and the Mexican Army carried out several tests on the member. They have not yet identified the X-rated bouquet's sender nor the unfortunate soul whose cock was in the box.

EIGHT years ago, a shocking crime took place in a small town in Massachusetts that made news headlines around the world.

A 17-year-old woman named Michelle Carter was convicted of involuntary manslaughter after sending a slew of text messages encouraging a young man to take his own life.

The true story of the 'texting-suicide' case was adapted into an eight-episode series, The Girl From Plainsville, which was a hit with viewers.

Now it's coming to UK televisions tonight at 10pm on Channel 4.

The series explores Carter's relationship with Conrad 'Coco' Roy III, a young man who lived less than an hour away from her in Boston.

The show chronicles the events leading up to his tragic death, in which the teen committed suicide by poisoning himself with carbon monoxide fumes from his truck in a K-Mart car park.

The series also examines Carter's controversial release from prison in 2020 after serving just 11 months in prison.

True, there are not a lot of laughs in it – but here are the leading ladies with their boobs out.

TELLY babe Aimee Luis has admitted she got so horny when filming E4 show Tool Academy she dragged a bloke off for secret shags.

The Hertfordshire hottie starred in the reality series which followed real-life couples with relationship problems, back in 2011.

Aimee said she made her fella go on the show because he was so vain and took ages to get ready for a night out.

But the top-heavy 30DD delight obviously wasn't too pissed off – because the randy pair couldn't stop BONKING each other's brains out!

She said: "It was hilarious. It was supposed to be about couples in crisis, but everyone was shagging all over the place."

"My boyfriend and I would sneak off all the time when we weren't filming."

"It was the best sex of my life – it was so passionate."

JUSTIN DUNN'S ROOM 101

WHAT'S ANNOYING HIM THIS WEEK?

PC posing for profit

IT can't be a very good week for whoever it is in charge of public relations at Flooring Hut, a laminate and flooring company in Worthing, West Sussex.

At the weekend, a reporter at the posh Sunday Times informed readers of an email they'd received from the eager firm.

It arrived just moments after he'd sat down to write about the woke madness infecting formerly grown-up companies like Coutts, the equally posh bank.

You know, the 'Royals' bank – its owner NatWest nearly 40% actually owned by us, the taxpayer – that kicked Nigel Farage out of his accounts on the grounds they really didn't like him very much.

He rightly kicked up such a stink about it that now banks face some serious questions not just from Westminster, but from their own customers.

A warning, you might think, for firms to concentrate more on their own business and less on everyone else's.

Inspired

But in the middle of all that, Flooring Hut – nope, me neither – pushed out a press release saying how they were moved by this year's Nelson Mandela Day.

The company, it shared (presumably with one hand clasped firmly over its sincere heart) said the great man's day of celebration had "inspired" it to "make a positive impact".

Now, I don't know what the "positive impact" they were babbling on about actually was, really.

Was it to overthrow an appallingly oppressive, racist apartheid system that we, er, don't have here?

Or to inspire people to move from political opposition to freedom fighting to terrorism, including the infamous 'necklacing' of opponents?

Necklacing was the big thing during the apartheid wars in 1980s South Africa.

Anybody not towing the otherwise noble "ban it" party line was wrapped in a car tyre, doused with petrol, and set on fire.

The weight of the tyre was usually enough to keep them from running away, but some perpetrators took it even further.

Sometimes they would first chop off their victim's hands or tie them behind their back with barbed wire to ensure they couldn't get away.

And then the cowardly bastards

SAINT: Darker side to Mandela's campaign would light their matches.

While the flames rose, hair fizzled, eyes burst, and skin started to blister and sear.

The tyres would melt and cling like boiling tar to human flesh.

The fire would burn on even after the victim died, incinerating the body until it was charred beyond recognition.

Few white men died with a car tyre around their necks, though.

Instead it would be members of the black community, usually ones who swore they were part of Mandela's fight for freedom but who had lost the trust of their friends.

Burned

One such "traitor" was grabbed while she was mourning at a funeral.

While TV cameras whirled, she was burned alive and her skull smashed in with a rock.

Then her dead body was sexually penetrated with shards of broken glass.

These aspects of the late Mandela's movement are rarely talked about for obvious reasons.

He's now, basically, a saint.

But it's all true.

And it's all there, behind simple Google searches, for everyone to learn.

Something, I suspect, the author of Flooring Hut's press release about being "inspired" by Nelson Mandela Day to make a "positive impact" may not necessarily have done.

So, no thanks, Flooring Hut, I don't want any carpets or laminates from you.

And with that name you might want to avoid flogging pizzas, too.

Dirty doc had toilet spy cam

A PERVY chiropractor was busted for spying on his naked patients through a camera he planted inside his practice's bathroom.

Scott Kline, 44, was charged with photographing an unsuspecting nude person after a patient noticed an odd-looking coat hook in the restroom of his chiropractic business, Back on Track in Peabody, Massachusetts.

The "out of place" hook was next to the toilet and had a small blue light on its side, according to prosecutors.

The patient's father and another man immediately confronted Kline (above), who begged: "Please, please don't do anything. I have a family."

Kline told police he got rid of the camera but cops later found it inside his office, allegedly stashed alongside hard drives containing "an extensive pornography collection."

Police also reportedly found a list of 117 women that included their names, ages and number of sexual encounters.

Fact me!

Drunk kills 11 burning down bar

A MAN thrown out of a bar came back and petrol bombed it killing 11 people.

State prosecutors in the filthy and lawless hellhole of San Luis Rio Colorado, Mexico, said the suspect was young, male and highly intoxicated at the time of the attack and had been thrown out of the bar for being disrespectful to women.

He then came back and threw a kind of Molotov cocktail at the doors of the bar.

Four of the 11 dead were women, and four more people were being treated in hospital for their injuries.

One of the women was a US citizen and another victim was only 17 years old, the state attorney general, said.

The suspect has been arrested by police.

THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT HAIRY!

TikTok babe splits followers with her fuzz

A TIKTOKER is receiving mixed reviews of her body hair, with some social media users calling it "beautiful" and others urging her to invest in a razor.

In one TikTok post with over 8.1 million views, Martina, who goes by @martina_peach on the platform, dons a barely-there pink bikini that shows her underarm and pubic hair.

Overgrown

"Pink bikinis and sun: perfect match!" she captioned the saucy clip.

In her most recent TikTok,

By MILES PLATTING
news@sundaysport.co.uk

shared, Martina once again slips into the teeny-weeny bikini — looking still as overgrown as ever.

"I like a blooming flower," one thirsty viewer commented.

Another stated: "This is what a real woman really looks like."

"1000% my type, an all natural goddess," someone else agreed.

"Superiority," one declared. However, some users shunned Martina, telling her she needs to "go shave".

"Have you ever heard of waxing?" one apparently questioned the beauty.

Another person reportedly had just one word for hirsute Martina.

"Gillette," the user allegedly wrote, referring to the popular razor brand.

"Gillette could sponsor you!" another echoed.

"You need to mow the grass," someone else declared.

Beauty

Recently, Mean Girls star Rachel McAdams faced criticism for flaunting her au naturel underarms for the April 2023 edition of Bustle.

"This is my body, and I think that's so important to reflect back out to the world," McAdams told the online magazine. "I love that juxtaposition of beauty, glam, fantasy, and then truth."

BASH STREET KIDS GO WOKE

REBRAND
The original gang

ONE of The Beano's most beloved comic strips — the Bash Street Kids — has gone WOKE.

The scampish cartoon schoolkids have been joined by five new pupils — Harsha, Mandi, Khadija, Mahira and Stevie Starr.

And original favourites Fatty and Spotty have been rebranded as Freddy and Scotty to stop youngsters with acne, freckles or weight problems being taunted by classmates.

Mike Stirling, creative director of the Dundee-based comic, which was first published in 1938, said he is unfazed by the prospect of being branded "woke" by former readers.

He told the Sunday Times: "It's awareness and being awake to things."

Modernising

"What would be easy to do would be to sleepwalk and keep The Beano the way it had always been done for ever."

The publisher is being advised by Inclusive Minds, the same organisation that oversaw

"modernising" changes to books by Roald Dahl and Enid Blyton.

The new characters include Mandira Sharma, known as Mandi, a nervous girl whose anxieties are used to highlight mental health problems, and the hijab-wearing Khadija Raad.

Other newcomers include Rubi, a ginger-haired scientist who uses a wheelchair, and Gemma Jones, a junior ghost hunter who is black.

The comic, which comes out on Wednesdays, sells around 40,000 copies a week.

THE WORLD FAMOUS AGONY Page

Dear Sam,

I'VE put on a bit of weight since my wife left me last Christmas, so I decided to go to a boxercise class at the gym twice a week.

I was a bit surprised to find a beautiful blonde with a figure to die for taking the class and I was even more surprised when she started coming on to me.

Soon I was staying behind after each session so we could have sex in the gym's ring.

We'd start with a sparring session before we'd end up grappling on the canvas and ripping each other's clothes off.

She would then suck me to within seconds of completion before spreading her legs on the canvas and thrusting my throbbing cock into her soaking wet pussy.

Problem is, she now wants me to take her up the ringpiece and I'm not keen on the idea. What should I do?

DG, Sussex

Sam says...

GIVE it a try, you might just like it!

Dear Sam,

MY bird's got a dog that is very protective towards her. The other night she gave me a cracking blowjob (my bird, not the dog).

First she stripped off and teased my throbbing knob with her tongue and tits before then deepthroating me.

I returned the favour and licked out her wet pussy. She was so turned on that she was screaming at me to f**k her good and hard.

I was starting to give her a good seeing-to from behind when I felt this unbelievable pain in my arse.

The dog had sunk its teeth into me and was tucking into my bum like a bowl of pet food, leaving my cheeks in a bloody mess.

I don't want to tell her to choose between the dog or me, because I think she'd go for the dog.

But the bloody animal obviously hates me. What should I do?

HF, Lancs

Sam says...

GIVE the dog a bone to chew on while you bone your bird.

Wife got turned on by bit of monkey business

Dear Sam,

I WENT to the zoo at the weekend with my missus. It was years since we'd been and we had a really great time among all the wildlife.

The best bit was after we'd gone to an enclosure to have a look at the chimpanzees.

We saw one pair getting really frisky and we watched gobsmacked as the male humped his mate.

It was such a good performance that my missus, obviously turned on, dragged me away to a little wooden pavilion.

Once inside, she pulled down my keks, lifted her skirt and presented her arse for rear entry.

Her minge was soaking in anticipation and I plugged her good and proper - monkey-style.

Now she's on about getting a pet chimp.

What do you think?

VK, north Wales

Sam says...

CARING for a chimp takes devotion. Stick a wildlife DVD in and hope that does the trick.

Party at country estate led to posh double nosh

Dear Sam,

I'VE had a long-standing fantasy about having my prick sucked by two women at the sametime.

And the other night, fate took a hand and it actually happened.

I was at a boring party on a huge country estate. The guests were all rather posh and talked endlessly about politics and money.

I made an excuse about needing the loo and left the room, but then I got sort of lost as I wandered about the massive mansion house.

Eventually I pushed open a door, which turned out to be a bedroom, and there on the king-sized four-poster bed were two good-looking naked women laying top-to-toe licking each other out.

Bouncy

I recognised them as two girls who had been at the party who, like me, had probably sneaked off to get away from the boring small talk.

I was about to turn and leave them to it, thinking they were out-and-out lesbians, when one of them called me back into the room.

She was slim and dark-haired, with lovely bouncy boobs.

The other was blonde, with smaller boobs but lovely long legs.

Both of them had trimmed their pussy hair right down and looked very inviting as they lay on top of the silky covers.

I was surprised and delighted when it looked very much like they were bisexual after all, not lesbian, as they suggested I join them.

They were sex-mad and, going by the scent of love-juice in the room, they'd had lots of orgasms already.

After I'd rapidly stripped off, they pushed me flat on my back saying they'd had enough sucking pussy and wanted some cock.

With that I felt two tongues flicking up and down my rod.

They were good at it too and I quickly had the hardest erection of my life.

The brunette licked her way slowly along my shaft, while the blonde kept teasing the tip with her hot tongue.

I was soon coated in the girls' saliva and throbbing on the brink of shooting my load as they teased and licked and nibbled away at my knob.

And when I finally did release my man milk, there was MASSSES of it.

My hot spunk spurted on the blonde's tongue and then across the face of her pal, leaving a trail dribbling down her chin.

Then came the part I'll never forget. The blonde looked at the blobs of spunk on the brunette's face and licked up every last drop.

The look of pleasure on their faces caused me to get yet another stonker and I shagged them both senseless for what seemed like hours.

When I finally gave in to sheer exhaustion, the two horny babes treated me to some red-hot girl-on-girl action that ended with them both enjoying yet another screaming orgasm.

What a night. Now I can't wait to meet up with this horny pair at the next party there!

LD, Essex

Sam says...

PHEW! Babes talk with forked tongues, eh?

Shit finish to beer festival loo romp

Dear Sam,

I WENT to a beer festival with a few mates and was pleased to find that it wasn't full of bearded, sandal and sock-wearing real ale bores.

In fact, being a university town, it was rammed full of girl students.

They were in the shortest of shorts in the hot weather and knocking back the booze like good 'uns.

I quickly decided not to get too pissed as it looked like an opportunity too good to miss.

My mates and I got chatting with one particularly fit looking group and I pulled a busty blonde who was a bit tipsy.

She was obviously up for a bit of fun, so we sneaked off into one of the on-site portable toilets and I soon had her keks off and was licking her out.

Pounding

After a while she repaid the favour and gave my rock-hard cock a good sucking.

Then I plunged in with my knob, pounding her hard and fast as she screamed out in pleasure.

We were really going for it when the bog contraption tipped over, sending us crashing arse over tit and trapped inside.

The poor girl was mortified and, after we had been rescued, wouldn't give me her number before she fled.

I'd love to see her again.

TB, Nottingham

Sam says...

I RECKON any hope of a relationship is ALE over already.

Dear Sam,

I NEED help and I'm hoping you're just the person who can help me solve my worrying problem and bring me everything I've always wanted in life.

You see, my ideal type of man is in his mid-40s with neat dark hair and a kind face, is charming and witty and, most important of all, has barrel-loads of money.

The trouble is, I can't seem to find a bloke like that, no matter how hard I try!

All I seem to end up with are blokes who want to get my knickers down and give me a quick one in the back of a car, in the pub toilets or else in the doorway of the block of flats where I live.

Have you any ideas where I could meet the ideal man – a man with a good, thick prick, who can last and last for hours on end.

A man who, when he cums, shoots out for ever and ever.

A man who knows how to really lick pussy until I am sobbing and crying with the passion and having the best orgasms of my life?

Please, do you know where I can find a man like that?

TN, east London

Sam says...

YOU must be joking. And even if I did, I'd keep him to myself!

The 34C Chester cracker said: "In the past few years, prices have been mental and you could see that eventually the bubble was going to deflate a bit – if not burst."

"I've been renting and with interest rates a bit higher than usual, I'm hoping that there will be some bargains to be had in the next few months."

"There was a doer-upper near me that just had 20K knocked off."

"I think we'll see more of that kind of thing."

Speedster Falls has sights set on Ireland raid

MICHAEL DODS' Commanche Falls could be set for a Curragh return after his tough success in the Hackwood Stakes at Newbury.

The six-year-old is enjoying a fine season and was third in the Duke of York before winning the Listed Dash Stakes at the Irish track in early July.

That run set him up for a Group Three outing in the Hackwood at the weekend, though wet weather left the ground softer than ideal as he left the stalls the 4-1 favourite.

The gelding did not look to be enjoying conditions early on under Connor Beasley, but as the race reached the final furlong, he edged through a gap to lunge over the line in a group finish.

Commanche Falls had prevailed by a head from Clive Cox's Diligent Harry and could now head back to the Curragh as he holds an entry for the Rathasker Stud Phoenix Sprint Stakes in August.

"He's been out in the paddock every day since, he's eaten up and he looks good," Dods said.

"The ground really wasn't to his liking as you could see, he looked beaten at halfway but Connor switched him and asked him a few questions and he showed a lot of guts and bravery to go through the gap and put the race to bed.

"There didn't look to be a lot of a gap but he dug very deep, he showed his guts to get through it and win.

"He's been unbelievable to be honest, he keeps surprising us. He never does anything the easy way because he's usually the first horse off the blade.

"He looks beaten and then he digs deep, once he gets into gear he motors to the line."

Of the Curragh trip, which would be dependent on suitable ground, Dods added: "That is the plan, all things being well. I don't think I would travel over there if it was very soft ground, we'd have to have a rethink.

DECISION: Michael Dods

"All things being well and on decent enough ground, the plan is to go there in August."

Dods also has another classy sprinter in Azure Blue, who beat Commanche Falls and Highfield Princess to land the Group Two Duke of York on the Knavesmire in May.

The grey then headed for the July Cup at Newmarket but came home sixth under Paul Mulrennan having pulled hard in the early stages.

A York comeback could be on the cards now as the filly holds an entry for the Group One Nunthorpe over five furlongs in late August.

"We've given her an easy week, I thought she ran a bit free at Newmarket. Whether it was the sticky ground or what, but she seems well," said Dods.

"She's been out in the paddock and we'll probably start her off this week again cantering and build her up to go again.

"I've got to discuss with the owners, she's got quite a few entries, so we'll have to decide where to go but she's in good fettle anyway.

Of the Nunthorpe entry, the trainer said: "It's definitely in the picture, she's got other entries as well but I'd like to think she could end up going there."

ALL THE TOP TIPS FOR TODAY'S RACING

Trooper can fire his way to glory

TROOPER BISDEE has the look of a typical Sir Mark Prescott improver who could rattle up a sequence in the John & Lou's Significant Birthday Celebration Handicap at Leicester.

Following three runs in novice and maiden company over shorter trips at two, he has come into his own when asked to tackle further this year.

He got his season off to the perfect start when winning by a neck at Yarmouth off a basement mark of 56 and he looked sure to go on to win next time out.

Stepped up to a mile and three-quarters at Sandown, he just had a complete off day when keen throughout and he never got involved.

It was easy to put a line through that though, and he regained the winning thread in clear-cut fashion at Bath last week. Racing under a 6lb penalty off his old mark, he should win again providing the drop down to a mile and a half does not count against him.

Tuki Tuki has achieved enough in two starts to date to suggest she is the one to beat in the British EBF Novice Stakes.

Her debut effort was a very promising third at Newbury behind Henry Candy's subsequent French Group Three winner Araminta.

She was then off for a couple of months before running at Lingfield over six furlongs where her third place, when weakening late on, was better than it looks on paper as she got loose beforehand.

Down to five furlongs for her third run, which goes against her breeding but not her running style, she can break her maiden.

Outran

Ben Brookhouse's Gozo arguably faces his easiest test to date this season in the Racing TV Handicap at Sandown.

In three runs since leaving Ian Williams, he has been beaten a short head at Haydock by the now 91-rated Coverdale, finished a fair third in the Bibury Cup at Salisbury and outran 40-1 odds to be a fine fifth of 12 in a £100,000 race at the July meeting.

He has been dropped 11lb for finishing just over three lengths behind Killybegs

Warrior there and should go well again.

Ralph Beckett sent two runners to Catterick last week resulting in two successes and this time his Feud can make the long journey worthwhile in the Sky Bet Go-Racing-In-Yorkshire Summer Festival Handicap.

Beautifully bred, by Dubawi out of a May Hill winner Agnes Stewart, he showed only a modicum of promise in three outings last year and was subsequently gelded.

Well beaten first time out this season, he improved on his next outing and finally got his head in front last time out.

With his confidence boosted from that Haydock success, he may be able to defy a 3lb rise.

Rose Bolt is not one of the stars in William Haggas' yard but she has shown enough in two starts to suggest she is the one to beat in the Hotel Indigo Bath Restricted Maiden Fillies' Stakes at Bath.

Starproof absolutely bolted up last time out and can give William Muir and Chris Grassick a boost ahead of a big week.

They run Pyledriver in defence of his King George crown at Ascot on Saturday and while Starproof is nowhere near that level, winners breed confidence.

Having just her second run over six furlongs, she cruised home and back over the same course and distance under a 6lb penalty, she can go in again.

Captain marvel hero for Rovers

HULL KR COACH HAILS KIWI STAR WHO LED HIS TEAM TO WEMBLEY

HULL KR head coach Willie Peters revealed how captain Shaun Kenny-Dowall steered his side out of a period of pre-match "chaos" and inspired their dramatic golden point Betfred Challenge Cup semi-final win over Wigan at Headingley.

Rovers lost star winger Ryan Hall to a calf injury in the warm-up, sparking a frantic re-shuffle that paid off when Brad Schneider's 35-metre drop goal in the extra period booked his side's first trip to the Wembley showpiece since 2015.

Kenny-Dowall emerged from a sin-binning early in the second half to help send Ethan Ryan over to erase a six-point deficit and Peters said: "Before the game we had adversity with Hally – everybody was ready to play so it was a bit of chaos."

"But we've worked on handling chaos since pre-season and for your captain to basically say everything

RUGBY LEAGUE
By JACK FARLEY

was OK, you need a leader to make sure the players stay calm and OK and when it comes from your captain it makes it a lot more powerful."

Rovers were pushed to the brink by a Wigan side reeling from Joe Shorrocks' sending-off for a high tackle in the first minute of the second half, before Schneider's dramatic finale – his second consecutive golden point winner after beating Leeds on his debut at the same venue last week – sealed their Wembley return.

And while Peters insisted his side had every right to the celebrations that followed, he also warned the little wins along the way, but we need to learn from 2015 when we probably got a little bit carried away in terms of winning the semi-final.

"Getting to Wembley is a great achievement and we're obviously going to be playing against a great Leigh team. It's cool to have two clubs like ours in a Wembley final but all the emotions of today won't mean too much if we don't do the job down at Wembley."

Leigh Leopards head coach Adrian Lam is relishing the prospect of leading his side out in the Challenge Cup final at Wembley after masterminding a stunning fightback to sink St Helens.

Emotional

Lam's underdogs produced a backs-to-the-wall first half effort before responding with second-half tries by Ollie Holmes and Zak Hardaker then holding out gallantly in the dying stages to book their first trip to Wembley since 1971.

"It's a bit of a dream," admitted Lam. "I played in two finals but not at Wembley. It's all about Wembley and I'm emotional thinking about it. It will be up there with the big moments of my career."

Leigh's fairytale was sealed in the final minute when Saints winger Tommy Makinson strayed a conversion attempt wide to seal a 12-10 win and continue the club's extraordinary success in their first season back among the elite.

"It is an unbelievable day – it went right down to the wire and I'm really happy for the town, the owner, who has invested a lot of money, and for the playing group," added Lam, whose side also currently sit second in the Super League table.

"I was happy it was only 6-0 (at half-time). We worked hard and I felt if we kept the score close at half-time, we'd win the second half. If you're a close bunch of boys you don't want to let each other down."

Meanwhile "devastated" Saints boss Paul Wellens said his heart went out to the normally dependable Makinson, who had also failed to convert Joey Lussick's first-half try.

"It's a tough one," said Wellens. "Tommy is really disappointed. I remember him kicking a goal in a World Cup semi, a pressure kick and he kicked it."

"But it doesn't come down to one person why we lost that game. I've had numerous good times celebrating together but it's even more important that when you're disappointed you remain together."

One player who will not form part of Saints' painful recovery process is Lussick, whom Wellens confirmed will immediately depart to Australia to continue his career in the NRL.

"Joey has played his last game for the club, but I want to go on record and say he was outstanding," said Wellens.

"People talk about the loss of James Roby but Joey stood up for the team today. Just allowing players to leave is not something we want to do but we've come to a resolution and I want to thank Joey for his efforts."

Wellens admitted his frustration with some of the officiating, specifically a tackle on Tee Ritson in the build-up to Leigh's second try, but was eager not to take anything away from Saints' opponents.

"Sometimes you see headlines like 'Wellens slams officials', and I don't want that, but I think there's two blokes running for a ball and if that's going in the other direction it'd be penalised," added Wellens.

FIT AGAIN: Billy Vunipola

Big names return for England

RUGBY UNION

BILLY Vunipola, Ollie Lawrence and Bevan Rodd have returned to England's 40-man training squad which assembled at Pennyhill Park.

Saracens number eight Vunipola and Bath centre Lawrence are both working their way back from respective knee injuries, with the former undergoing surgery earlier this summer.

Sale prop Rodd has also rejoined the group at the Honda England Rugby Performance Centre, while Harlequins wing Cadan Murley and Gloucester prop Val Rapoava-Ruskin have been omitted.

Head coach Steve Borthwick is continuing preparations for the 2023 Rugby World Cup, which starts in September.

England will play four warm-up matches next month, the first two against Wales, home and away, on August 5 and 12 respectively, then take on Six Nations champions Ireland in Dublin (August 19) and Fiji at Twickenham the following week (August 26).

Borthwick is due to announce his final World Cup squad on August 7, with England set to launch their World Cup campaign against Pool D rivals Argentina in Marseille on September 9.

Champ Harman up for the Cup

BRIAN WANTS TO BE AN EASY RYDER

OPEN champion Brian Harman says making his Ryder Cup debut would "mean the world" to him following his dominant victory at Royal Liverpool.

When he recovers from the after-effects of drinking a celebratory Guinness or two from the Claret Jug, Harman will be able to ponder the welcome prospect of a longed-for debut in the biennial event in Rome.

Harman's six-shot victory lifted him from 20th in the standings into the top six automatic qualifying places and effectively ends the two-time Walker Cup winner's long wait for a Ryder Cup debut.

Enjoy

"I've spent I don't know how many years chasing," Harman said following the second round of 65 which provided the springboard for his first major title.

"It always seems it's right there at the end and I end up in between 13th and 18th on the list and I'm hoping for a pick. It would mean the world to me to play on the Ryder Cup team. I think I would do very well."

Speaking after lifting the Claret Jug, the 36-year-old left-hander added: "I enjoy match play. I've done well in all the match play tournaments I've played in."

"I had a really good junior record and amateur record in match play. I enjoy the head-to-head competition."

"I had a lot of success as a junior golfer. I won the US Junior and then as an amateur I was the number one ranked amateur in the world for a good while, was the youngest American to get picked for the Walker Cup."

"I had success. Like I had the pedigree. Then I got to college and it just kind of sputtered a little bit. I just didn't keep up the progression."

"My pro career has been really good at times and not good at times. Last year felt like I kind of found something a little bit, and yeah, man, it's been great."

Harman's performance at Hoylake means he will not be needing to rely on a wild card to make the trip to Marco Simone Golf and Country Club, although his chances may have been better than imagined given the identity of the US captain.

"He's a really good friend of mine,"

Zach Johnson said after carding a closing 74 on Sunday.

"We live on St. Simons Island. I've known him for years. Great family, great wife, great kids. The Harmans are dear friends of mine."

"What is transpiring the last couple tournaments he's played in does not surprise me in the least. He is a very formidable competitor, number one."

"Number two, hey, what does Brian Harman do really well? Well, he does everything quite well. He's a very good driver of the golf ball and a very, very, very good putter."

"Then if everything else is good, then it can be pretty lethal. Our games are very similar except for the fact that he stands on the wrong side of the golf ball."

"He hits it a little further. He's gritty. He's got a great ensemble of coaches and a team."

"He's still young enough and competitive enough that I think there's still room for improvement in his game, which is pretty scary because I think he's really, really good."

Harman has revealed how being heckled by a spectator helped inspire him to a dominant victory at Royal Liverpool.

Harman held a five-shot lead after a stunning second round of 65 but got off to a slow start on Saturday with two dropped shots in the first four holes.

"After I made the second bogey a guy, when I was passing him, he said, 'Harman, you don't have the stones for this'," Harman said.

"It helped snap me back into (thinking) 'I'm good enough to do this. I'm going to do this. I'm going to go through my process, and the next shot is going to be good'."

"I figured at some point, just with the weather and the scenario, you're going to hit bad shots. I knew that the way I responded to that would determine whether I'd be sitting here or not."

Harman carded a third round of 69 to maintain his five-shot lead and a closing 70 in miserable conditions to finish six shots clear of Masters champion Jon Rahm, Jason Day, Sepp Straka and Tom Kim.

"It's pretty surreal. It really hasn't sunk in yet," Harman said. "I'm not going to let it (the Claret Jug) out of my sight for the time being. To win what I consider the greatest prize in golf is as good as it gets. I'm over the moon."

"It was a tough last three days, it really was. Being able to get some sleep was big last night. Sleeping on a lead like that is really difficult, so I'm proud of the way I hung in there the last couple days."

CRAZY OFFER: Mbappe

Mbappe in talks with Saudi club

PARIS St Germain have granted superstar striker Kylian Mbappe permission to talk to Al Hilal after the Saudi Arabian club submitted a world-record £259million offer.

The 24-year-old has not signed a one-year extension to his existing PSG deal, meaning he will be a free agent next summer and able to walk away for nothing.

The Saudis will reportedly offer him around £10m A WEEK to sign!

The player, who starred in France's 2018 World Cup success and again as Les Bleus reached the final in Qatar last year, was left out of PSG's squad for a pre-season tour of Japan.

That move by PSG made it clear to other clubs the player was available for sale this summer, sparking Al Hilal's gigantic 300m euro bid.

Sources close to the French club say there has also been interest in the player from other clubs in recent days, including Chelsea, Manchester United, Tottenham, Inter Milan and Barcelona.

If the deal for Al Hilal was completed, it would smash the world transfer record fee paid by PSG to Barcelona for Neymar in 2017, which was reported at £200m at the time.

PSG are understood to be certain that Mbappe has agreed a free transfer to Real Madrid next summer, with Parisian sources saying he would benefit from a 160m euro (£138m) signing-on fee if he wound down his existing contract and moved to the Spanish capital in 2024.

A sale this summer would enable PSG to secure a return on their investment in Mbappe, who they signed for 180m euros from Monaco and retained last summer on a new contract amid earlier interest from Real.

The ball is now firmly in Mbappe's court to make a decision on his future.

Al Hilal are one of four Saudi clubs who are now majority-owned by the Saudi Public Investment Fund (PIF), a sovereign wealth fund with assets under management worth over £500billion.

The club – along with three others under control by the PIF – have invested in the European transfer market this summer but the acquisition of Mbappe, who is arguably the best player on the planet, would be the biggest statement of Saudi Arabian strength yet.

TRIBUTES TO GREAT TREV

A HOST of former footballers led the tributes to "wonderful gentleman" Trevor Francis following his death at 69.

A spokesman for the family confirmed on Monday the former Birmingham, Nottingham Forest and England striker had died following a heart attack.

Francis became Britain's first £1million player when he joined Forest in 1979 and went on to score the club's winner in the European Cup final later that year.

He earned 52 England caps and later led Sheffield Wednesday and Birmingham to major finals as a manager.

Peter Shilton, the former Forest and England goalkeeper, tweeted: "I'm absolutely devastated to hear about my old team-mate Trevor Francis. A wonderful gentleman, a friend and a terrible loss."

Former England striker turned TV presenter Gary Lineker wrote: "Deeply saddened to hear that Trevor Francis has died."

"A wonderful footballer and lovely man. Was a pleasure to work alongside him both on the pitch and on the telly. RIP Trevor."

Chris Waddle, who was a member of Francis' Owls side that reached the League Cup and FA Cup finals of 1993, tweeted: "So sorry to hear the sad news that Trevor Francis has passed away, he was a lovely man and such great player and thank you so much for bringing me to SWFC.. RIP legend."

Mark Bright, another member of that Wednesday side, added: "RIP, Trevor Francis. Trev signed me when he was player/manager at SWFC."

"The club experienced some great times in the early 90s, Trev his wife Helen were very kind in helping me to settle in at the club. I appreciated it then & now. Love to sons Matthew & James."

Chris Kamara, the former Brentford and Swindon midfielder who became a media colleague of Francis', offered his condolences.

Million

He wrote: "Oh no, just heard Trevor Francis has passed away. What a player he was & what a gentleman. Got to know him well when Trevor was doing his commentary for Sky, a job he loved."

"RIP Trevor the first million pound player who always looked a million dollars."

Another media colleague, Hayley McQueen, daughter of former Leeds and Man United defender Gordon McQueen, said: "Gutted about the passing of Trevor Francis, he was never the same after the passing of his beloved wife Helen six years ago."

"One of the loveliest couples you could meet who took me under their wing working on a World Cup way back, dinners, lunches & even meet-ups back in London."

Francis broke into the Birmingham team at the age of just 16 and after winning the European Cup twice with Forest he also went on to have successful spells with Samdoria and Rangers. He also played for QPR, Manchester City and Wednesday.

GREEN ADMITS AUSSIES WERE LUCKY

AUSTRALIA all-rounder Cameron Green admits his side "got out of jail" in their Ashes-clinching draw at Emirates Old Trafford.

A 2-1 lead with one more game to play at the Kia Oval this week means the tourists retain the urn as holders, but they were spared a winner-takes-all decider by a rain-ruined end to the fourth Test in Manchester.

England were well in control after piling up a 275-run first-innings lead, but with just 30 overs possible across the last two days they were prevented from converting their dominance into a series-levelling win.

Green, who was one of Australia's not out batters as the washout unfolded, told cricket.

CRICKET

com.au: "I think we definitely got away with one there."

"There's no point denying it. Whilst we were behind the game, and you never know what would have happened, cricket is a funny game, but England dominated this one. We definitely got out of jail."

"We didn't play our best game. The rain gods were in our favour the last couple of days. You just take it and move on to the next game."

Green's place is under some doubt for the fifth Test, with fellow all-rounder Mitchell Marsh in seemingly undroppable form and Australia pondering a return for spinner Todd Murphy. Whether he makes the XI or not, Green believes the tourists will be focused on completing a first outright win in England for 22 years.

Australia were 2-1 ahead going to the Oval four years ago and paid the price for over-exuberant celebrations before the final act as England squared the scores.

"The last time they were here they had a win here to retain the Ashes, but it's a bit different this time around," said Green.

"I'm sure a few guys are hurting from last time. We'll keep it level-headed and looking forward to the next game."

England have named an unchanged squad for the final Ashes Test of the summer with a decision now required over James Anderson's involvement at the Kia Oval.

All eyes will be on what England do with Anderson.

The veteran, who will turn 41 on Sunday, has struggled to take wickets throughout the series, picking up four scalps in three Tests at an average of 76.75.

He only claimed a solitary wicket in the drawn Old Trafford match and, after being rested for England's victory at Headingley, the return to fitness of Ollie Robinson will leave captain Ben Stokes and head coach Brendon McCullum with a tough call to make in the capital.

Newcastle boss delighted to finally get transfer of Barnes over the line

NEWCASTLE have completed their swoop for Leicester frontman Harvey Barnes after a protracted pursuit.

The 25-year-old wide-man, who has been in the Magpies' sights for sometime, has signed a five-year contract after the two clubs agreed an undisclosed fee which it is understood could eventually amount to £38million.

Newcastle said in a statement: "Newcastle United are delighted to announce the signing of winger Harvey Barnes for an undisclosed fee.

"The 25-year-old has signed a five-year contract."

Barnes, who travelled to Tyneside last week to undergo a medical, is the third addition to a squad which finished fourth in last season's Premier League with AC Milan midfielder Sandro Tonali and Odense striker Yankuba Minteh, who has been sent out on loan to Feyenoord, having arrived earlier this month.

A graduate of the Foxes' Academy, he made 187 appearances for the club, which was relegated to the Sky Bet Championship at the end of last season, and is an FA Cup winner as well as a full England international.

Barnes, who scored 13 Premier League goals for City during the 2022-23 season, said: "I'm delighted. It's an amazing club and for me it's a massive opportunity to come and be involved in a successful team that's doing exciting things, so I'm absolutely buzzing to be here.

"I think it's an attacker's dream to come into a team like this; it's high paced, it's physically demanding, but you can see the rewards of that with the chances and the goals scored, so I think I'll certainly suit the style."

Barnes' capture is reward for the Magpies' persistence and head coach Eddie Howe was delighted to have finally got his man after a protracted process.

Howe said: "Harvey is an exciting talent who I have admired for a long time, so I'm delighted to welcome him to Newcastle United.

"He is strong, quick and very good technically, and he showed last season in particular that he has an eye for goal from wide positions.

Future

"He will add a different element to our play and we look forward to working with him as we prepare for the season ahead."

Leicester thanked the player for his contribution during his time with the club.

A statement said: "After a proud 16-year association with Leicester City, Harvey departs with the thanks of all friends and colleagues at the football club for his contribution during that time and best wishes for his future career away from the club."

Barnes' arrival is likely to signal the departure of Frenchman Allan Saint-Maximin, who was left out of the party which has travelled to the United States for the inaugural Premier League Summer Series as he held talks over his future having been linked with a move to Saudi Arabia.

Roy Hodgson lamented the loss of an "iconic figure" at CRYSTAL PALACE after Wilfried Zaha left the club to join Galatasaray.

Zaha was a free agent after the expiry of his Crystal Palace contract and had revealed he was in Istanbul for talks, having reportedly turned down a £200,000-a-week offer to remain at Selhurst Park.

He took to Instagram to confirmed his exit from Palace, the club he joined when he was 12 and scored 90 goals in 458 appearances, describing their shirt as his "second skin".

Zaha had signed a three-year deal worth an annual £3.75million, Hodgson expressed disappointment at the forward's exit.

"I was really sad to hear that Wilf has decided to leave and start a new chapter in his footballing life," said Hodgson, who earlier this month confirmed he would manage Palace for the 2023-24 season.

"I was always hoping that he would commit his future to the club and I would have the benefit of working with him again this season."

"I would like to thank him personally for everything he did during my time as manager."

"The club is losing an iconic figure and, although we regret that it has not been possible to persuade Wilfried to stay longer, we can only wish the very best of luck to him and his family in their new venture."

Zaha left Palace for Manchester United in 2013 but had two loan spells back in south London before returning on a permanent basis in 2015.

The Ivory Coast international, who made two appearances for England before switching his allegiance, had also been linked with Lazio, Fenerbahce and Al-Nassr this summer.

Palace chairman Steve Parish added on the club's website: "Wilfried Zaha leaves the club having been our best and most influential player."

"After long discussions it became clear he wanted a different challenge, to experience something new and somewhere different before the end of his career, and I think that's something we can all understand."

"We would not be the club we are today without Wilfried. We are entering our 11th consecutive season in the top flight, and he has spearheaded the vast majority of those campaigns."

BAZ WANTS DON DEALS

ABERDEEN manager Barry Robson is optimistic of completing further transfer deals after overcoming disruption in the club's scouting unit.

The Dons lost head of recruitment Darren Mowbray to Southampton not long after last season ended but brought in Jordan Miles from West Ham.

Robson has added five new players to his squad as well as re-signing Leighton Clarkson and Graeme Shinnie following loan spells.

"It's not ideal when you lose your head of recruitment halfway through a window, but this is football and it happens sometimes," he said.

"I had ones that I wanted done as soon as we could and we managed to do that.

United work hard to sign hitman

ERIK ten Hag says Manchester United are making progress in their pursuit of a new striker.

United have signed midfielder Mason Mount and goalkeeper Andre Onana but work continues to sign a striker, with Atalanta talent Rasmus Hojlund targeted. The Old Trafford giants are only believed to be willing to go up to £60m for the Denmark international, while Frankfurt's Randal Kolo Muani is an alternative.

"We make progress," Ten Hag said when asked about United's pursuit of a striker.

"But you know how it works – when we have him, we will tell you directly.

The only thing I can say is we do everything that's in our power to get that done.

"If it was up to me, yeah, as soon as possible. The earlier the better because we have to integrate him in the team, the way of play.

"In an ideal situation, he was already here but you do not always get ideal situations as a manager and you have to deal with the situation."
